Dear Bella

We've done a trial use of Fixread. It is well-designed and helpful in training students' reading ability. The following is our general feedback:

- 1 Well-designed learning process: We agree with your emphasis on reading strategies. Your choice of strategies is accurate and complete, with explanations, examples and exercises. The instruction of reading strategies will facilitate the reading process a lot. First strategies, then lessons around each strategy respectively with step-by-tasks and instant quizzes, the structure is clear and logical.
- 2 Up-to-date topics of reading materials: The topics of the texts catch hot issues of the time and fit students' appetite.
- 3 Detailed reference: Quizzes are accompanied with keys and detailed explanations, which will greatly help students understand when they make mistakes.

The second letter

Dear Bella,

We've made the trial use of the higher levels. To be frank, the more we use it, the more we love it.

The difficulty levels across the course are well-defined, which could be shown by vocabulary, the choice of reading strategies, the topics and the texts. For example, the lower level focuses on specific strategies, while the higher level focuses on comprehensive use of strategies previously learned. Besides, the user interface design also shows your deep understanding of language learning, with a clear procedure and even the meaningful icons. In one word, it is an impressive language learning product.
